DID YOU KNOW?

Having your child seen by Age 7 can reduce costs long-term and is an important part of early intervention?

The Canadian Association of Orthodontics recommends that your child visit an orthodontist by age seven. This gives the orthodontist an opportunity to detect and re-educate harmful oral habits.

At Docbraces, we examine more than just your child's teeth; we look to guide the development of the whole jaw and oral structure, which in turn affects the development of the entire skull. This can prevent migraines later in life, as well as jaw problems, breathing difficulties and poor oral habits. A straight smile does more than just look good — it helps ensure quality of life.

We want to keep your children smiling as much as possible! Contact us today.
